Dirt Crown stock car series opens Off Road Speedway season

By RANDY POSPISHIL

Norfolk Daily News

The 2025 season at Off Road Speedway kicked off Saturday night with six classes of racing, including the Dirt Crown Summer Series stock cars.

Following heat races, 24 cars from Kansas and Nebraska earned spots in the Dirt Crown Series Stock Car “A” feature, all seeking to lead the pack across the finish line and cash in on the $2,000-to-win purse as well as IMCA points.

Ultimately, Jordan Grabouski made the most of two circumstances — a starting position on the inside of row two and early race leader Jeff Ware’s being sent to the rear of the field as a penalty for causing the race’s first caution.

That caution arrived six laps into the 30-lap feature and moved Grabouski into the lead, a lead that the Beatrice driver never relinquished despite two more cautions returning the field — including racers such as Casey Woken of Lincoln and Cameron Wilkinson of Neligh, who pursued Grabouski for six and eight laps, respectively — to his rear bumper.

Eventually, though, Austin Brauner came out on top of a three-wide group made up of Wilkinson, Tyler Frye of Belleville, Kansas, and Brauner with 15 laps remaining to secure second behind Grabouski. Soon, however, as the cars spread out behind him, Grabouski extended his advantage and eased through the final dozen laps, with only a brief challenge from lapped traffic, to earn the victory.

The win is Grabouski’s seventh overall win, the most in the Dirt Crown Stock Cars Summer Series but his first at Off Road Speedway.

Brauner, of Platte Center, finished second while Berry, a Hays, Kansas, driver who moved up from a starting position on the outside of row six, took third place.

In the IMCA Late Models “A” feature, Norfolk’s Matt Haase turned a starting position on the pole into a wire-to-wire victory, while Aurora racer Dylan Schmer — after passing Alex Banks with seven laps left in the 20-lap feature — finished second and Banks, of Newman Grove, held on for third.

Tristan Grape of Bellwood also took advantage of a starting position on the pole, leading all 15 laps while winning the IMCA Hobby Stock feature race.

Behind him, meanwhile, Travis Landauer and Jason Wilkinson battled all race long for second place with neither able to establish control until the final three laps when Landauer, of Albion, appeared to have cleared Wilkinson.

Even then, Wilkinson used momentum from the high side to challenge Landauer as the pair exited turn four and sped to the finish line.

Landauer secured second, narrowly edging Wilkinson’s late rally by a matter of inches, forcing the Neligh driver to settle for third place.

Cameron Meyer of Pierce did not have the benefit of a starting position near the front, instead coming from the middle of the 21-car field to win the IMCA SportMod “A” feature.

In a race filled with cautions and restarts, Meyer worked his way from the fifth row into the top five by the fifth lap and then, following a string of three consecutive cautions, passed pole-sitter and race leader Lee Horky on the inside of turn two to get out front.

Meyer held on to the lead through three more cautions during the final 12 laps before finalizing the victory. Horky, of Fairbury, finished second with Brayden Weller of Palmer in third place.

Norfolkan Kyle Reed, no stranger to victory lane in the Pro Stock IV class, opened the Off Road Speedway season with a win.

Reed moved up from the fifth of six rows in the 12-car field, taking the lead from Zach Cordner with a pass on the inside exiting turn four with just four laps remaining in the 10-lap feature.

Cordner held onto second place, while Bentley Freeman — who had been passed by Pierce driver Kiegan Werner with three laps left — passed Werner one lap later to grab third.

A new division of cars, the Crown Vic class, made its first appearance at Off Road Speedway with Christopher Nickolite of Bellwood leading all 10 laps while running away with the first “A” feature by half of a lap.

Damon Arehart of Neligh took second place, with Grayson Stobbe of Columbus — after passing Aden Mielke of Norfolk on the final lap — finishing third.
